Dear Parents/Carers

Re: Appointment of New Principal of Brockington College

I am delighted to announce that this week we have appointed the next principal of Brockington College.

Following a very rigorous process over two days, Mrs Sadie Batstone was appointed to take up the role of principal at the start of the summer term.

Mrs Batstone is currently vice principal at Long Field Academy in Melton Mowbray. She impressed the various selection panels with her passion for our school ethos and values, together with the desire and ability to continue to drive pupil achievement at Brockington.

As you will be aware, I will be taking up the role of chief executive officer of Embrace Multi Academy Trust. I am really excited by this opportunity, as I will be in the fortunate position of continuing to support the growth of Brockington College. Through the formation of Embrace, alongside the six founding primary schools, our governors have taken the decision to invest in the future of Brockington College. The move will benefit all academies involved, as we work together to secure the highest possible standards for pupils.

The new principal will be responsible for running Brockington College, but I am delighted that my connection with the college and the wonderful pupils, members of staff and parents/carers will continue. You cannot get rid of me that easily!

Just as you have supported me in the role of principal, I know that you will get behind Mrs Batstone as we begin another new chapter in the development of Brockington College.

Yours sincerely

Mr Chris Southall
Principal
